

The Power of the Meme

Putin as an Object of Derision and Admiration on Social Media

© Gennadi Kneper

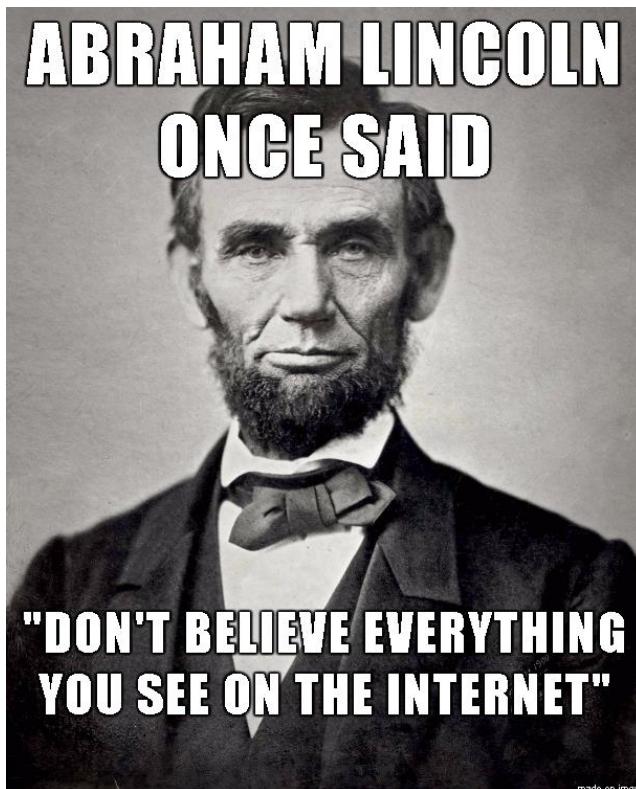

What is a meme anyway?

Richard Dawkins: The Selfish Gene (1976)

- Equivalent to genes
- Unit of cultural transmission (ideas, symbols, practices)
- Between individuals & generations
- Replication

What is an internet meme?

Cambridge Dictionary:

Idea, image or video that spreads very quickly on the internet

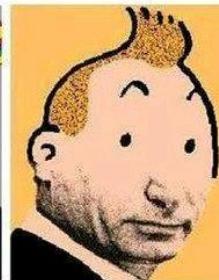

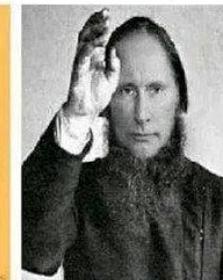

- Usually image macros
- Oftentimes humorous, sometimes critical and satirical
- Non-mainstream or subcultural

A controversial meme celebrity:

Pepe the Frog

Specifics of on-line communication

Internet isn't mass media,
it's a communication
platform.

- Multi-access
- Multi-directional
- Interactive

2005: 1 billion users
2010: 2 billion users
2020: 4.5 billion users

Are we closer to Habermas's ideal?

Bourgeois public sphere (18th-19th century)

Rational &
critical

Mass society
public sphere
(20th century)

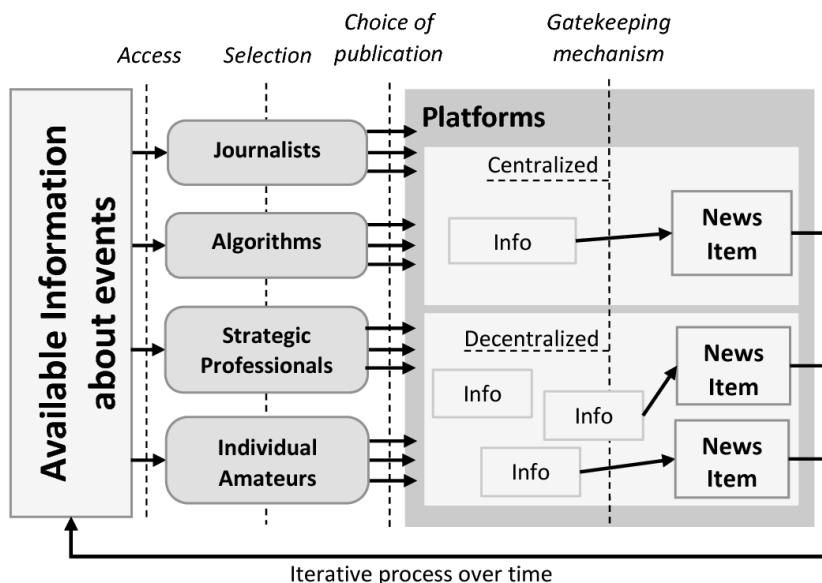

Emotional &
consumerized

Information society
public sphere (21st century)

Consumerized &
critical?

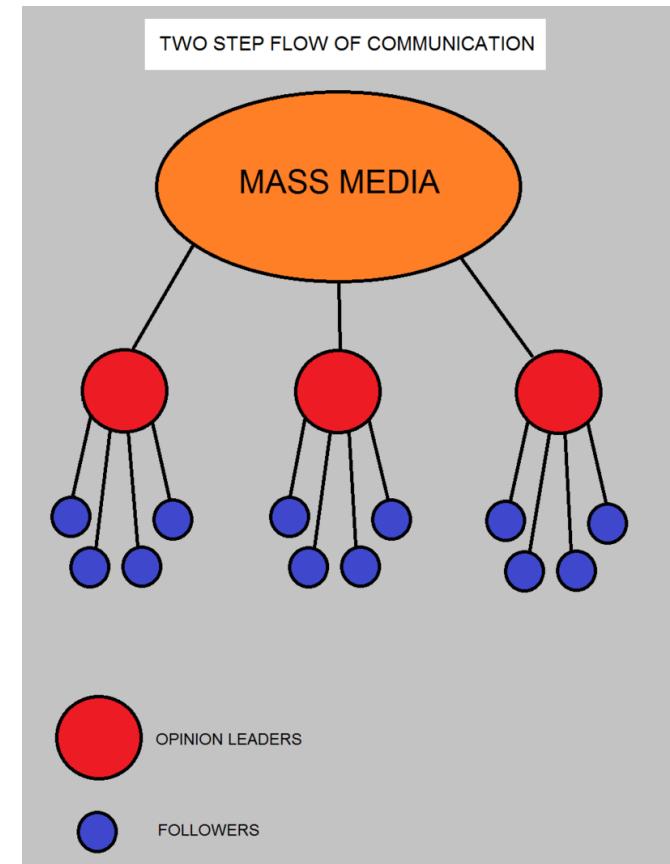

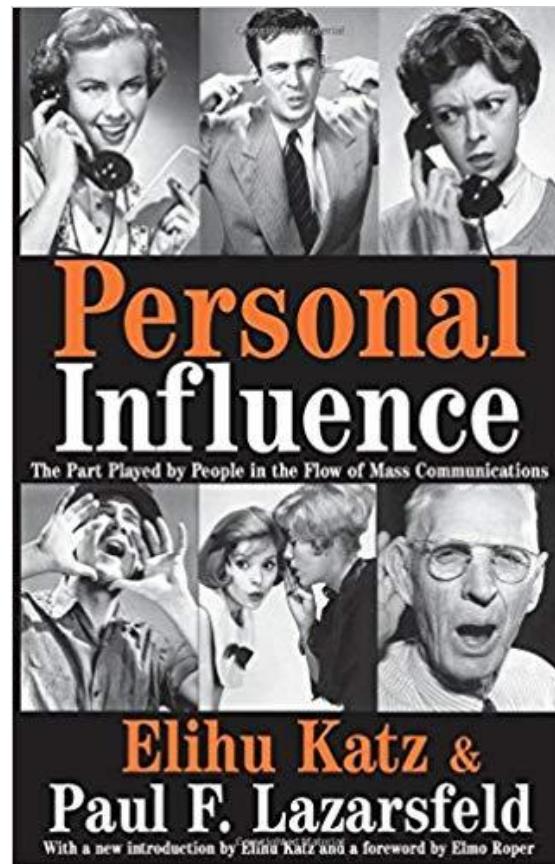

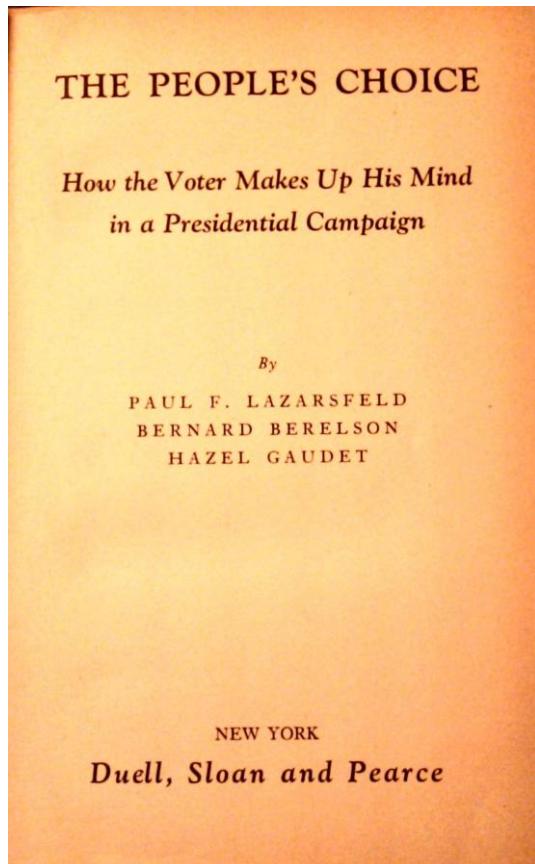

How does communication work today?

Digital Gatekeeping

- There are more active participants.
- Old gatekeepers lose control.
- Agenda-setting becomes more complicated.

Multi-step flows and opinion leaders

What does it mean for our discussion?

- Chaotic environment
- Limited control

The construction of a public persona is a cultural battlefield with a multitude of conflicting images.

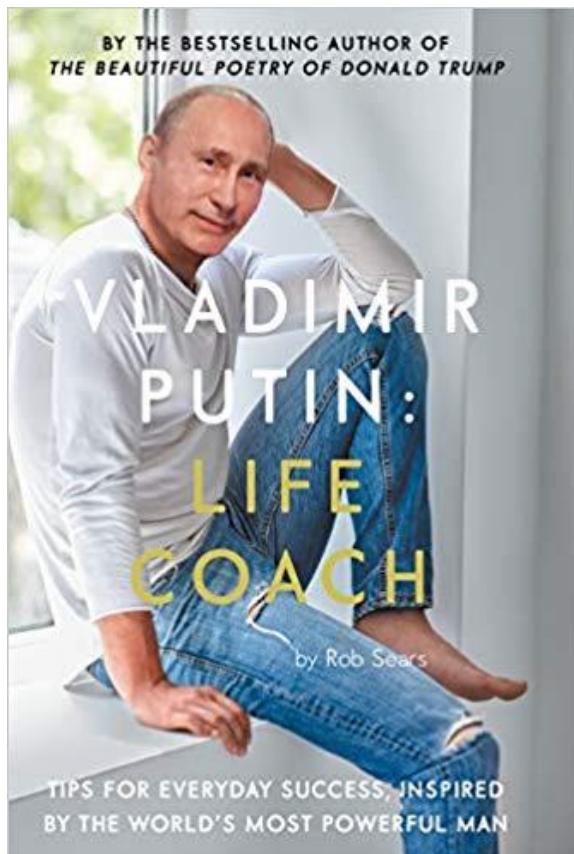

In Putin's own words

“In contemporary conditions my image and name are a widely marketed brand used by anyone who feels like it.”

(Putinki 2004: 71)

Putin memes: where to start?

1. Studying communicators?

Problem: unclear authorship

2. Studying impact?

Problem: wide-range empirical study necessary

Content and context study more feasible

Mind the socio-cultural context

No meme here, just a casual picture of Vladimir Putin ...

21st-century communication:
rhetorical and philosophical indeterminacy

Difficult to distinguish between positive and negative connotation, derision and admiration

Putin's intended image

Благодаря ему, ко многим из нас вернулось уважение к своей стране и это, как мне кажется, куда важнее чем то, насколько поднялся престиж нашей страны в мире.

А представьте, какой сильной и насколько уважаемой станет наша страна, если каждый возьмет хоть немного ответственности за неё! Президент, хотя и великая фигура, но не всесильная. Ему надо помочь! И надо спешить... Бог нам не так часто посыпает таких руководителей.
